entire letter : CONSTANTINOPLE. Oct. 5 .- The Divan, as I anhounced to you in my last letter, had been authorized by the Sultan to convoke an extraordinary assembly of the notables of the realm, on Sunday, Sept. 25, for the purpose of pronouncing finally on the Russian question. This high political tribunal handed in its decision at 10 P. M., on Monday .-The Council was composed of 280 persons, ministers, viziers, ulemas, functionaries of the first and secand classes, and officers of the army. It was presided over by the Grand Vizier, MUSTAPHA PACHA, with the assistance of the Scheik ul-Islam and the Scheriff Prince MOHEMMED IBN-NAUM. RESCHID PACHA laid before the assembly the historical details of the Turco-Russian difficulty, relating all the phases of the question, and explaining how the Porte had lost all hope of seeing Russia recede from her unreasonable demands and accept the modified Vienna Note. The Russian Emperor had, on the contrary, declared that he desired to punish the barbarian Turks. With these words the minister concluded, and the assembly passed on to its final

The protocol, drawn up on the spot as the expression of the national will, declared that all diplomatic negotiations in the Turkish-Russian question were ht an end, and that the Ottomans offered to the Crown their property and their blood for the instant vindication of their rights against Russia, who, by throwing her troops into the Danubian Principalities, manifested her disdain for the benefits of peace, precisely at the moment when the Porte and Europe were most anx-desirous to know whether that Prince had realdecided to make common cause with the Porte. -The Ministers were about to make reply to this inpiry, when the Scheriff Mohammed-IBN-Naum. tarsed to his feet, and cried aloud : " Allah ! Allah ! effendimisin kiliteini keishin cilesse," (May God creatly sharpen the scimetar of the Sultan.) The scheriff Mohammed-IBN-Naum, who has, for fifteen years past, held the great Scherifat of Mecca, exreises an extraordinary influence, as a descendant Seria and Kurdistan. He then stated that the clergy had placed immense sums of money at the displeasure in lauding the conduct of the various of Russia, and conclude t by saying that the Imperial Government would protect that class of its subfects with peculiar solitude. The Chiefs of the Clergy responded that they took real pleasure in confirming this report of the Christian populations. They added that they had none to contend with but their Russian foes, and that the Christians, in maintaining their faithful submission to the Sultan, had no hostile demonstration to fear, but if they should declare in favor of the Russians, they would be
